

Did you know that there are 7,000,000 job openings in the US that are going unfilled?

Join an interactive discussion of Fortune 500 companies to learn what stakeholders mean by “The Future of Work” – the global policy discussion on the digital revolution and its impacts on jobs, skills, training and economic growth. Participants can expect to come away from the workshop with deeper knowledge of this high-profile policy area, and prepared for action through meaningful exchange with company peers who are active on this issue:

“The Future of Work”

Confirmed Speakers Include:

Salesforce: Jim Green – Senior Vice President, Government Affairs and Labor Affairs

IBM: David Barnes – Vice President of Global Workforce Policy

Randstad: Annemarie Muntz – Managing Director Global Public Affairs

Sessions:

- Getting internal buy-in, alignment and planning future of work programs
 - Scaling future of work programs across different national contexts
- Measuring and communicating impacts to diverse internal and external audiences

September 5th

Washington DC: Evermay Estate

8:30 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. (Breakfast & Lunch included)

Reception to follow

Space is limited