Become an IOE Corporate Partner

- ▶ In a context of fast-paced evolutions from climate change to new technologies, do you want to provide your company with the means to better grasp and anticipate emerging global trends in industrial relations, human rights, sustainability, or labour issues and their impact on your company, supply chain and markets?
- ▶ Based on your company's experience, do you want to have a global outreach by directly influencing and participating in global policy-making and standard-making processes impacting the world of work?
- ▶ Do you want to be part of a community of proactive leaders and engage in safe space conversations to navigate the increasingly complex landscape of current and future regulations while being prepared and agile to respond to multiple global transformative changes?

About IOE

The International Organisation of Employers (IOE) is the largest network of the private sector in the world, with some 150 national Employer and Business Membership Organisations representing some 50 million enterprises of all sizes. Strong of more than 100 years of voicing the interest of employers, IOE brings its unique expertise, advocacy and influence as a powerful and balanced voice for business worldwide.

“Come join us in supporting our national employer and business federations and contribute to the IOE’s work as a powerful and balanced voice of business in employment and social policy on the world stage. This IOE initiative provides companies with a unique opportunity to understand and engage on global issues that affect our businesses.”

Paul Lalli

Global Vice-President, Human Rights, Labor & Employee Relations,
The Coca-Cola Company

Why Corporate Partners?

Benefit from direct access to IOE's Global Networks on Industrial Relations (GIRN) and Occupational Safety and Health (GOSH), and dedicated Policy Working Groups.

► Engage through IOE as the voice of employers in global-level policy-making in the International Labour Organization (ILO) and other international forums (United Nations, UN Climate Conference, B7/B20, Annual and Regional Forums on Business and Human Rights) and contribute to impact through specific initiatives (e.g. Child Labour Platform; Alliance 8.7; Employers' Alliance for Green Skills; Business Advisory Group on Migration).

► Demonstrate corporate leadership in policy circles and gain valuable networking opportunities with peer-level companies in a safe space environment.

► Enjoy key high-level speaking and meeting opportunities with global leaders to showcase your company's engagement.

How does the Corporate Partners initiative work?

► Corporate Partners bring together multinational companies to engage in work with IOE bilaterally and by leveraging their global network of employers' federations, companies, and the UN.

► Partners discuss potential interests and needs with the IOE Secretariat and agree on a bespoke programme of individual services.

► Partners are included in all IOE communications, discussions, meetings and events and shape IOE's global position.

“Our long-lasting partnership with IOE is based on a valuable exchange on future trends and access to global as well as local expertise, that help us identify upcoming initiatives and legislatures well in advance. We immensely appreciate the openness of our discussions, continuously and particularly at highlight events like our joint annual Business and Human Rights Conference.”

Lars Langner

Vice-President Social Sustainability and Human Resources, Deutsche Post DHL Group

In collaboration with our global network of Employer and Business Membership Organisations, IOE proudly supports and sponsors the Corporate Partners initiative to provide individual companies with greater access to IOE-specialised support and services.
